Famous Battles and Toys!

Whether you're a fan of Dragon Ball, DBZ, or DBGT, there's one thing that all fans enjoy, a good battle! Inside this month's issue, Dragon Ball expert Greg Werner gives us a list of his all-time favorite battles from all three series. There's Goku versus Jackie Chun, Goku versus Frieza, Gotenks versus Super Boo and many more. Check the battle reviews beginning on page 4. After you read this feature, tell us about your all-time favorite battles.

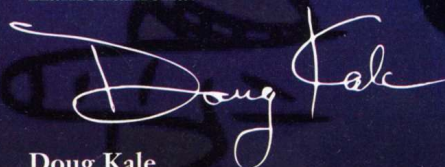

Artbox Entertainment recently released a new set of trading cards featuring scenes from the hot new Cartoon Network TV series, Dragon Ball. This 100-card set pictures all your favorite DB good guys (Goku, Krillin and Yamcha), plus your favorite bad guys (Emperor Pilaf, Mai and Shao). To view this entire set along with the rare chase cards, turn to page 10.

Next, it's onto the toys! Many of you have Bandai and/or Irwin Dragon Ball Z toys in your collections. However, there was another company that released DBZ toys in the late 1980's and early 90's that many collectors don't know about called AB Groupe. They released a ton of cool Dragon Ball action figures and vehicles that are now very hard to find. Dragon Ball toy expert, Dan Hancock, knows all about these toys. He's given us an AB Groupe history lesson and a review of the various DBZ products they produced. For a closer look at our AB Dragon Ball Toys feature flip to page 28.

This month's issue also included two very special sections. One is on wrestling cards and the other is on a hot new anime show called Yu-Gi-Oh. Many of you have either seen the new episodes or have heard about it through your friends. Since everyone is talking about Yu-Gi-Oh these days, we've decided to include a special feature on it. If you'd like to learn more about Yu-Gi-Oh turn to page 69. You'll find out what Yu-Gi-Oh is and the names of the major characters in the story.

Plus, we have another cool Fantasy Fight Fest poster inside. What would happen if Super Saiyan Gohan fought with Super Saiyan Trunks? Man, that would be some battle. To see how Beckett DBZ cover artist imagined it would look like, turn to page 33.

FIGHT CLUB

An in-depth look at the famous battles of Dragon Ball/Z/GT.
By: Greg Werner

Without even taking a vote, it's pretty easy to guess what many DBZ fans love most about the series, the BATTLES! All 187 of them, and 241 if you count all of the extra battles that occur in the anime. But with so many episodes and volumes of manga and episodes of anime, not even considering the movies and TV specials, is it humanly possible to see all of them? Of course. The REAL question is, do you really want to spend that much time on them all? Consider this, when Goku kicks the Great Fish in early Dragon Ball, that is a battle. That's not exactly something you're going to rush out and buy to get an adrenaline rush from, trust me. So what battles deserve your attention? We're glad you asked! Although many battles in Dragon Ball, Dragon Ball Z and Dragon Ball GT rock, these are what some consider to be, the best, of the best! Enjoy, but watch your step, it's about to get dangerous!

Dragon Ball

Goku Vs. Jackie Chun:

This final match of the 21st Tenkaichi Budoukai was packed with a ton of special moves that were new, powerful and always, unique.

Although some moves may seem odd, ("Wild Dog Attack" Revolving Attack" etc.), they're always good for a laugh. There's even a nod to Drunken Boxing, (popularized here by Jackie Chan movies), with Jackie Chun's "Drunken Fist" (coincidence, I think not). Bottom line, this is not a lightning fast DBZ-style battle, but it is very original and interesting. It even has a few twists and turns, (like Goku turning into a Great Monkey during the fight!), so be sure to check it out, you won't get bored, there's simply too much going on in this battle for that to happen!

Goku Vs. Piccolo Daimaou:

This was the first time in Dragon Ball a truly evil villain who posed a huge threat to the earth was pit against Goku in a battle deciding the fate of the world. Having already lost to Daimaou in a previous battle, this was a tough fight for Goku not only because he was facing an incredibly powerful opponent, but also because he'd lost friends for the very first time due to Daimaou's handiwork. Only a few times in the series does Goku wear a face as solemn and angry as when he lands to save Tien from Drum and Daimaou. The battle is full of city destroying ki attacks and is the first battle where extreme amounts of property damage occur. The finishing blow delivered to Daimaou will always be remembered for being incredibly visceral and a satisfying end to such a horrific villain. But, of course, before Daimaou blows up he gives birth to his "son", a being that contains all of his memories and strength. This of course brings us to....

Goku Vs. Piccolo "Ma Junior"

The final battle in Dragon Ball in the last Tenkaichi Budoukai to transpire in the series for quite some time is a satisfying finale as it rivals many of the DBZ battles in its intense emotional moments. A Japanese fan of Dragon Ball even recalls vomiting after reading one of the horrifying surprise twists near what seemed to be the end of this perfectly orchestrated bout. This battle contains many special moves never seen again a la Goku Vs. Jackie Chun, but here, all of the moves are deadly. No dancing around like a monkey here. Piccolo is a ruthless and relentless opponent here, coming back from the throes of death, only to battle with intensified ferocity and strength. Although neither Goku nor Piccolo have the strength to destroy planets at this point of the series, the emotion, strength and intensity of the battle oozes from them almost so that you can smell their sweat from the TV. I don't want to give much away, but this battle is really amazing, no fan should miss it!

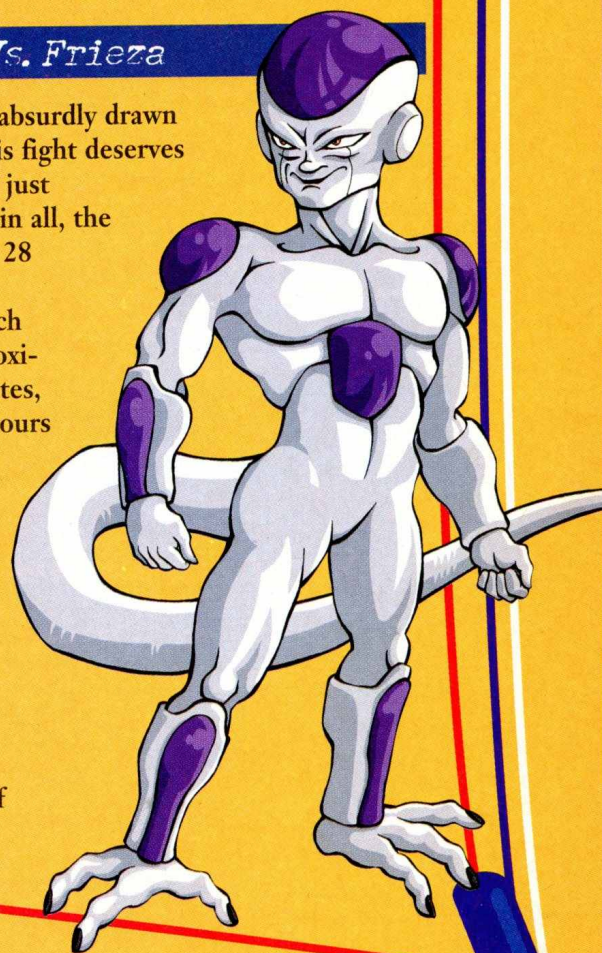

Dragon Ball Z

Goku and Piccolo Vs. Raditz

Coming full circle, what makes this fight so great is that opponents that tore each other apart, (literally), in the last big fight, now unite and work against a force which is considerably more powerful than both of them together. The animation is dark and gritty and extremely angular, a style which the very early Z series was prone to. Part of the devilish delight in this battle is seeing Goku's Kamehameha do literally nothing to Raditz, and watching Piccolo's highly anticipated Makankosappou fall short of being even worthless. Face it, you like to see the bad guys win! Mix all of this with the surprise attack by Gohan and this short battle becomes a classic!

Goku Vs. Frieza

Although absurdly drawn out at times, this fight deserves credit for being just that....long! All in all, the fight is roughly 28 episodes long! Considering each episode is approximately 24 minutes, that's about 9 hours of fighting footage * _ * (taking two hours out because of plot development). Now, some points definitely get taken away here because of recycled footage and scenes that say the same thing over....and over.... and over. However, if you take all of that out, it's really amazing. The amount of power on display here is nothing short of awe inspiring. Want proof? How about Frieza's many transformations, each more powerful than the last; Frieza's resistance to the Kaio techniques; the Spirit Bomb which is the size of a small planet; Goku's transformation to the legendary Super Saiyan; and the battle between 100% Frieza and Super Saiyan Goku. Just thinking about the triumphs won, and defeats suffered in this fight should send chills down your spine. After all, its name is Frieza.

Gotenks Vs. Super Boo

Much for the same reason Goku Vs. Jackie Chun was great, so is Gotenks Vs. Super Boo. This battle is quite literally a laugh a minute. Consider the fact that the following character personas are mixed all together at one time: Piccolo's no-nonsense straight-laced attitude; the most powerful and insane villain of all time, Boo; and the childish innocence, (albeit his trash-talking and pompous attitude), of Gotenks. What's the result? Comedic mayhem! How about the attacks? Gotenks' special techniques are powerful enough to destroy a small nation, but they carry names like Super Ghost Kamikaze Attack, Galactica Donuts and, of course, Hyper Plasma Shortcake. Having not explored a truly comic fight since Dragon Ball, it's pleasant to see Toriyama return to his roots with this comedic battle.

Son Goku, Vegeta, Mr. Boo and Mr. Satan Vs. Kid Boo

As the final "dire" battle of Dragon Ball Z, this shines as a perfect finale, bringing back many characters not seen in years and helping them be a part of this last match. Although the inhabitants of Earth help in an abstract way, victory would not have been possible without the teamwork of Goku, Vegeta, Mr. Boo and yes, even Mr. Satan. They all help in their own special way to defeat Kid Boo. The scene where the humans work together and raise their hands to donate energy to the Ultimate Spirit Bomb and even Goku's tribute to Boo are tearjerkers. Scenes aren't reused, characters don't repeat useless information; this is a perfect fight! An appropriate ending for a deserving series!

Dragon Ball GT

Saiyans (and Uub) Vs. One Star Shenron

From Super Saiyan 4 Goku and Vegeta to Super Gogeta, and back to normal Goku, this battle is less of an emotional fight, and more of a pyrotechnic display that fits as the ending to such an explosive story. Many Dragon Ball/Z fans aren't happy with DBGT's storyline, and while some parts of GT are downright annoying, the last saga is particularly interesting and feels exactly like a Z story. Very similar to Z's final battle against Boo, this fight caters to fans, giving them more of what they love, a BIG Spirit Bomb gathered from the countless people who Goku's life has touched, (for better or for worse, but mostly for better).

Although not as sad as Z's final fight, this is satisfying and finishes the Dragon Ball story off just as it should, with a BANG! ★

The Good, The Bad & the

What would Dragon Ball Z be without its line-up of intense characters? The series' backbone lies within each character's individual personas, not to mention their personal strengths and weaknesses. Each character has a distinct personality, and after watching the show for a while, you'll come to know the character, as you would a close friend... or perhaps an enemy. Which is why, in this section, we will tell you a little bit about each character so you can get to know them even better than you already do.

Chi Chi

It is said that behind every great man, there's an even greater woman. Does that mean, behind every Super Saiyan, there's a Super Saiyan 2 woman?? Joking aside, Chi Chi is indeed the wife of Goku and she is also a truly amazingly strong woman, in many ways! For one, she's the only one in the universe who, (according to Piccolo at least), is, "...stronger than a Super Saiyan." This is basically a slam on Chi Chi and her constant battles with Goku over her son's education versus fighting to save the universe. Now before we go any further, stop and think about it seriously for a minute. Is Chi Chi justified? We do laugh at her desperate antics to save her son, (and sometimes she IS actually plain stubborn), but most of the time, she's being a normal good parent, Goku is really the one we should be laughing at. Would your mom have let you go and battle the universes' forces of destruction before junior high? I think not. She generally wants to raise her son like any normal parent. This could be linked to the fact that her mother died when she was still young and this is her way of making up for something she never had.

Okay, enough of the psychoanalysis, let's talk a little bit about Chi Chi. Her father is the Ox King, a loveable oaf who had the misfortune of going on a picnic with his daughter on a day a fire spirit lit his mountain aflame, stranding him and Chi Chi at the bottom. Through a series of rather interesting circumstances, Goku met up with the little warrior Chi Chi and after succeeding in helping to put out the fire, Ox King promised his daughter's hand to him in the future. Years later, Goku met Chi Chi at the 23rd Tenkaichi Budoukai and actually faced her in a match not even knowing who she was, (something that annoyed Chi Chi to a great extent). But after the match, which Goku won, she revealed her identity and asked if Goku still wanted to get married. Goku agreed but he also assumed that "marriage" was a type of food. Chi Chi, you should have taken that as a big hint then and there!

Super Vegeta Baby ○

Originally the king of the Tuffles, Baby had his "self" sent away from planet Vegeta before it was taken over by the Saiyans. It was here that Dr. Myu was employed. Actually an android, Dr. Myu was created with the purpose of resurrecting Vegeta Baby, unfortunately, time had passed and he had forgotten his creation. He thought he was creating Baby, when in fact Baby created him. When Baby was finally reborn, he hopscotched bodies, (yes he can do that), through the universe until he happened upon Goku, Pan and Trunks, hidden within the body of what seemed to be a sick boy. Luckily they all managed to persuade Baby to cease his attack in their own special way. Although it seems like this is the end of Baby, it's only the beginning!

Baby managed to escape to Earth by hopscotching through victim's bodies again. But once he makes contact with a Saiyan, Goten, his plan for revenge is put into motion. One-by one he begins to control the Saiyans until finally he takes implants himself within the strongest Saiyan left on Earth, Vegeta. As Vegeta Baby he controls everyone on Earth except a few lucky humans that escape his grasp. When Goku, Pan and Trunks land on Earth, they only realize the danger they're in way too late.

Baby manages to become Super Baby 2 by absorbing energy from around the world and gets his wish granted for a new planet that he names Planet Tuffle. It is here, on Planet Tuffle, that the decisive final battle between Super Saiyan 4 Goku and Great Monkey Baby takes place. A battle that decides which is better; the superiority of Tuffle technology and mind-power or the strength and will of the Saiyans, once and for all.

Previously available only in Japan, Artbox is now able to share these great cards with collectors here in the U.S. so we can all watch as Goku and his powerful son Gohan engage in battle throughout the universe in their fight against evil and would-be conquerors of Earth! And as always, Artbox adds its own flavor to the mix with special cards created just for this set. Along with the 72 card basic set, collectors will now find 12 special Prismatic cards, 16 Silver Etch cards, and 3 extremely rare Double Sticker Cards! And, as if that's not enough, look for randomly inserted Autograph Cards from the voice talents of Dragon Ball Z! Make Your Own DBZ Web Page

Put your own animated cartoons on the web!

Last month we explored setting up your own Dragon Ball web site, using the built-in page editors provided by the folks who are giving out free web space. Since there are so many web pages out there, the best way of getting yours to stand out from the crowd is to include lots of original content. This could be fan art or stories, gaming strategies, reviews of your favorite episodes, home made puzzles and quizzes, or pages devoted to particular characters.

Without a doubt, almost everybody on the Internet is looking for Dragon Ball animated cartoons that they've never seen. Since those are pretty much controlled by Toonami, this leaves budding Web masters with one clear choice - design and animate your own cartoons!

"Yeah, right!" you're probably saying. "All I need is a million bucks or so and an animation studio to do that, right?"

Actually, creating your own web-based animations is pretty easy, and essentially can be done for free! There's a little bit of work involved, but with the aid of a computer, it can go pretty quickly.

First, you need to understand how animation works. When one picture after another goes in front of your eyes quickly enough, each picture stays in your brain for a fraction of a second after it's no longer in your sight. Since the pictures in a film or cartoon go by so quickly, they appear to be a single image moving around. Scientists call this "Persistence of Vision." You've probably seen crude animations in flip books, where you flip the pages so fast that the drawings seem to be animated.

With the help of your computer, you can make your own series of drawings and save them in a file format known as an "Animated GIF," which is basically a cartoon for the Web. Using your favorite drawing or paint program (if you don't have one, see last issue's column), draw the basic background and characters you'll want in your cartoon. Here are some very simple drawings I made of Goku and Piccolo playing cards.

Notice that only a few changes were made in each picture. What I did was duplicate the first one a couple of times, then erased and redrew parts. The next five pictures show Piccolo pulling a fast move on Goku.

The next batch showed Goku figuring out what was going on and teaching Piccolo a hot lesson!

Now these pictures by themselves tell a story in comic book fashion, but turning them into a cartoon is really worth doing! Once you have your picture files saved as gifs (sometimes it's not necessary to save the individual pictures in that format to animate them). You have to bring them into an Image Animation program. Many of these can be downloaded from the Tucows web site (<http://www.tucows.com>), either as freeware or shareware. The difference between the two is that freeware is indeed free of charge, but shareware programs can be tried for a while for free, but if you use them regularly, you are morally obligated to pay a fee to the person who wrote the program. Some easy to use animators for Windows includes Easy GIF Animator, GIF Construction Set, and Alchemy GIF Animator. Mac programs include Gif.gif.gif, GIF Builder (my personal favorite), and GIF Fun for Mac OS X, if you're running that.

The image animator program usually allows you to choose which pictures you wish to animate, how long each one stays on screen (measured in tiny fractions of a second), and whether you want the animation to loop around over and over, or stop after a specific number of times. If you use the same picture more than once in the animation, it will keep the file size small, which is important for fast downloads. Here's a screen capture of GIF Builder in action.

Once you've built up your animation, then you can upload it to your web site just like any other graphic. It won't feature sound, but it will move, and be your own creation. If you'd like to see this particular completed animation in action, point your browser to:

<http://www.ronevry.com/dbzcards.html>

Here's a handy hint: if you use your browser's "View Page Source" option, you can read the simple HTML code I wrote to put up the animation.

There's an email address link there for you to send me your comments, and links to your own animations. Also, I have been getting swamped with email regarding terrific selections of DBZ Readers' Picks, and, of course, I'm always looking for more! We'll be featuring some of them here real soon! ★

Goku and gang take a trek across Europe

In the mid-1990's, the Dragon Ball phenomenon was beginning to wind down in Japan. Dragon Ball GT, the anime-only series created by Toei Animation after Akira Toriyama's departure from Dragon Ball, was living up to neither Toei nor fan expectations. It was fairly clear to most people in Japan that Dragon Ball, while a wonderful and extremely popular series in its heyday, was beginning to lose steam.

However, at that same time, Dragon Ball Z was taking Europe by storm, thanks to AB Groupe, the European licensor of the Dragon Ball franchise. AB is the leader in French Pay-TV thematic channels, and they also import and dub popular series from other countries, such as "Friends" from the US, and Dragon Ball from Japan. AB also does all of their merchandising in-house, and of course, when a cartoon series is doing well, the best way for any company to make money is to flood the market with toys!

Taking a cue from Bandai, the company that produces Dragon Ball toys for Japan, AB Groupe released a countless amount of original and imported Japanese toys not just in France, but all over Europe. These toys range from 1" mini-figures to 16" super-size figures, and cover nearly every action figure niche in-between. Also, AB released or commissioned many other promotional items, such as clothing, videos, paper goods, etc, just as FUNimation is currently doing in the US. Many of these toys and other items are now extremely rare, and the original releases are some of the most sought-after items for Dragon Ball collectors.

Many of these toys and other items are now extremely rare, and the original releases are some of the most sought-after items for Dragon Ball collectors.

5-inch Super Guerriers

The staple of AB's Dragon Ball line was the 5" Super Guerriers Articulé (Super Articulated Warriors) series. This line of figures, roughly equivalent to Bandai's Super Battle Collection, was made up of 25 figures from the series and the Dragon Ball Z feature films. However, unlike the Super Battle Collection, which seemed to focus on the Super Saiyans and the main enemies from the series, many of the SGA figures are characters from the films and some of the more neglected characters from the series. In fact, whether this was intentionally done by AB or not, the SGA line seems to directly supplement the Japanese SBC line. For example, the Super Battle Collection features two Majin Buu figures, one of Fat Buu (his first incarnation), and one of Kid Buu (his last incarnation). The Super Guerriers Articulé line features two more Majin Buu figures, one of Skinny Buu (his second incarnation), and one of Super Buu (his third incarnation). A quick glance at the list of figures shows the accent put on movie characters as well, with characters such as Tapion, Minoshia, and Hildegarn from Movie 13.

Mini Figures

AB also released about 30 sets of 2-inch mini figures. These sets feature all kinds of characters from the series, both main characters and characters with a single appearance. Some of the sets are themed, such as Set 29, which features the main characters in Santa Claus outfits, or Set 31, which features the original characters from Dragon Ball along with a Shenlong figure for them to ride on. Many of these molds were also shrunk and used to produce 1" mini-figures, which were sold individually packaged in opaque wrappers to enhance their "tradability".

16-inch Super Guerriers

And in keeping with the size motif, AB released a line of 16" Super Guerriers. While most of these (such as Android 13, Videl, and Tapion) appeared to have been made from enlarged Super Guerriers Articulé molds, some (such as Super Saiyan Goku, Super Saiyan Vegeta, and others) were imported from Japan, where they appeared as the "Best of DBZ" line. Furthermore, some of the figures were completely original, the best example of this being a 16" Fat Janemba that is now the most sought-after Dragon Ball toy that AB released.

Other AB Toys

Some of the most interesting AB toys, however, are the ones that are simply unique. First, AB released a series of six "Combat Sets". Each combat set depicted a pivotal point in a battle featuring two characters; for example, one depicts a scene from Movie 12 in which Gohan destroys a resurrected Frieza with one punch, one depicts Goku and Vegeta doing the Fusion Dance, and one depicts a fat Gogeta fighting Janemba. These sets, measuring about 3 inches tall, make incredible display pieces.

Also, AB actually made toys that kids could play with—GI-Joe-type figures that came with vehicles. There are four sets in this series. Mr. Satan's Car is a three-wheel vehicle that comes with articulated figures of Super Saiyan 3 Goku, Tien, Mr. Satan, and Videl. Also available were Super Saiyan 3 Goku with Motorcycle, Trunks with Aircar, and Gohan with Jet Plane. Each of these pieces are difficult to find, but the Mr. Satan Car set is perhaps the most sought after, because there are no other figures of Mr. Satan and Tien. The Trunks/Aircar set is generally worth more, however, due to a much lower available supply.

Just like Bandai in Japan, AB did not limit itself to simple action figures. In true Japanese style, they released a series of action figure models, similar to the Bandai Full Action Kit series. These models, when completed, have a whopping sixteen points of articulation, and most have rubber clothes and accessories. Like the SGA series, this series also features characters, such as Tapion and Minoshia, which were not previously released by Bandai.

However, like many great toy lines, AB's Dragon Ball line was fairly short-lived. By the late 1990's, these figures, for the most part, were getting extremely rare; however, their value had not increased a great deal, because there was little demand for them. This trend began to reverse itself, though, once Dragon Ball was released in the United States.

From AB to Irwin Toy

In 1998, Irwin Toy released its first set of Dragon Ball figures in the US. This set was primarily imported straight from AB, and features many of the figures from the Super Guerriers Articulé line (as well as some figures previously released in the US by Dorda Toys). This line did not do particularly well with retailers, mainly because Dragon Ball had yet to catch on. However, once the series had gained popularity in the US in late 1999 and early 2000, Irwin reissued many of the SGA figures alongside Bandai Super Battle Collection figures in their "The Saga Continues" line. Now that Irwin is producing its own figures, and no longer reissuing figures from AB or Bandai, these figures are getting harder to find. Lately, some KB Toy Stores have carried some of them in their original Super Guerrier packaging, but they have been few and far between. As usual, the best place to find these toys in the US is an auction site like eBay, but every now and then the major online anime stores will get shipments in.

Furthermore, these toys are enjoying re-release all around the globe, thanks to toy giant Mattel in South America, and KidzBiz in the UK. Also, the soaring American popularity of Dragon Ball has ignited once again the spark of interest in mainland Europe, where AB Groupe has begun plans to re-air the Dragon Ball series, complete with a new dub by Ocean Group, the actors who voiced the first two seasons of the series in America.

Thus, AB Groupe has had a lasting impact on the worldwide face of Dragon Ball, both the series and the toys that accompany it. ★

Masters, Fighting Styles, and Tokui-Waza

Part 1: Fighting Styles

The Dragon Ball Z Collectible Card Game offers something that many card games do not. There are colored cards, each with their own fighting styles and abilities, included with series. In this article you will learn about the different fighting styles and how you can benefit from them.

Fighting Styles

The DBZ CCG features six unique fighting styles, each representing a special tactic or method of fighting. Let's take a look at what those styles are, and what they do:

Black - This fighting style is known as the Foot-Hand style, and uses physical attacks to do massive amounts of damage. When used properly, you can hit your opponent for 15 life cards of damage every turn! While this style is primarily an attacking style, it also has some powerful drills that add more power to your punch. Try out some of these strong cards when building a Black deck: Black Overpowering Attack, Black Searching Maneuver, Black Defensive Burst, Black Striking Drill, and Black Side Kick.

Red - These are often called Blocking cards, with powerful abilities and unique powerups. They're also very hard to beat! The Red style has many awesome blocking cards that insure your health and the best available anger abilities in the game. Many cards raise your anger one or two, and with certain combos, you can get to level four in a few short turns. Remember to include these cards in your Red deck: Red Energy Shield, Red Implosion Drill, Red Palm Heel Strike, Red Knife Hand, or one of many others!

Blue - Referred to as the Calming style, I can see where it got its name. The Blue style is good at primarily one thing, prevention. It features the best anti-anger system around, with many cards lowering your opponent's anger by one or two, and the mastery to help that even more. Thanks to many good blocking cards, it will be hard for your opponent to overcome this well prepared style. Although there are too even more powerful additions like Blue Terror that you should look to add.

Orange - The Cosmic fighting style, if used properly is completely unstoppable, and totally impossible to beat. It relies heavily on particular drills, and very strong and costly attacks. If you can get out all of the required drills, then you are assured a victory since a combination of some of the drills prevent your opponent from doing just about anything.

To help you get those drills, use Orange Searching Maneuver to find the ones you need to win. The drills to get in an Orange deck are: Orange Special Beam Cannon Drill, Orange Aura Drill, Orange Energy Dan Drill, Orange Destruction Drill, and Orange Joint Restraint Drill to name a few.

Namekian - One of the more difficult styles to use or master, it has the potential to rise to the top. With many powerful attacks, blocks, and drills, this style uses simple techniques to overwhelm your opponent and crush them. When using Piccolo or Nail as your main personality in a Namekian deck, you get a special benefit by having up to 80 cards in your life deck, enabling you to do even more amazing hits.

Certain Namekian Style cards have a special ruling on them that allow for you to have up to eight of that card in your deck. This could be devastating on your opponent. Try and get some strong drills out, then attack your opponent with some of these great attacks: Namekian Thrust, Namekian Head Strike, Namekian Braced Attack, Namekian Wrist Grab, and Namekian Energy Absorption.

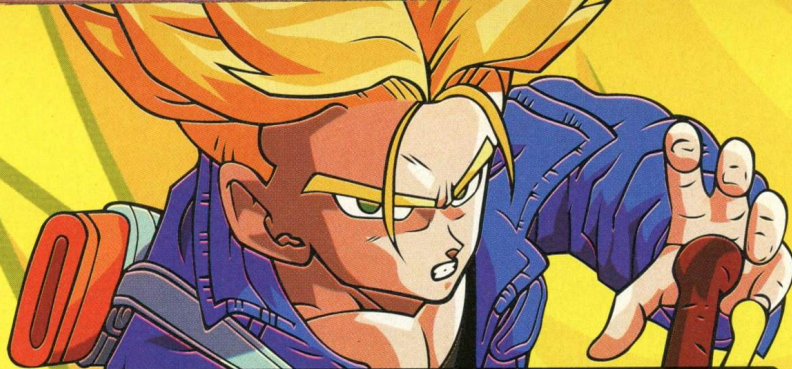

Saiyan - Another one of the more difficult styles to use, this one can be very powerful. More like an all-around fighting style, you can attack, block, get Dragon Balls, prevent victory, gain anger, and so many more things with this major style. Cards like Saiyan Planet Explosion can block an energy attack and make sure that you don't see another one until next combat. It's like getting an extra turn! With powerful energy attacks and blocks like Saiyan Mental Energy Attack, Saiyan Energy Aura, and Saiyan Concussion Punch, you can really show your opponent whose boss. Try building a Saiyan deck. It's surprisingly strong, and grows stronger very fast, just like the Saiyans on the DBZ TV show do! Try improving your deck even more with the amazing new Saiyan-style cards in the Androids Saga like Saiyan Face Stomp, and Saiyan Lightning Dodge.

Coming Soon...

Next month, in the DBZ Rulez section, look for Part 2 on the Masteries of the DBZ CCG, and how they can help you win the game better, faster, and stronger! Are You Up To The Challenge? ★

IN SEARCH OF WWF CARDS

Wrestling collectors cherish their memorabilia cards.
By Joe White

The wrestling hobby has maintained a steady growth since Fleer's arrival. Their most recent release, Raw is War, continues to bring in new collectors every day. When Fleer unleashed their first WWF product, WrestleMania, onto the market, hobby shops around the country declared this product a huge hit with collectors. It's been many months since that first release, but WWF fans are still in search of those red-hot Lip Service and Foreign Object cards. However, most of their focus has turned to Fleer's highly anticipated second release—WWF Raw Is War insert cards.

Fleer's push for more event-used memorabilia cards has once again paid off. Pieces of ring mats, skirts, T-shirts and even trunks of "The One" Billy Gunn have made wrestling card collecting a lot of fun!

In today's day and age of trading card releases, autographs continue to be a necessity. So, in addition to the memorabilia cards, Fleer also made sure to include several certified hand autographed cards such as The Undertaker and Triple H. As a bonus, 50 lucky WWF fans can actually pull a redemption card that will entitle them to receive an actual Ringside folding chair seat from a big WWF event.

Want Lists

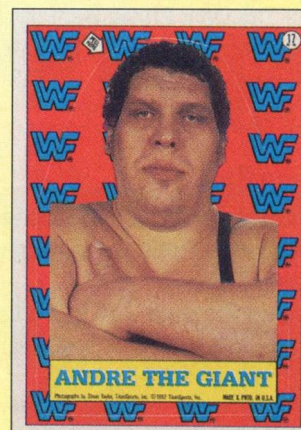

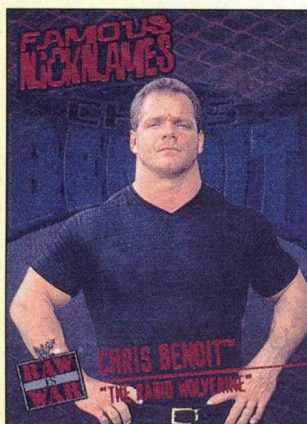

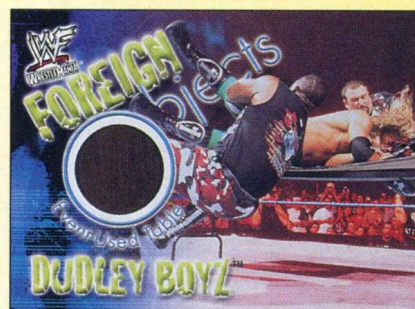

One card that continues to show up on everyone's want lists is the Dudley Boyz Foreign Object Table card. Since there's a short supply and big demand by set collectors for this card, it has become a real challenge to find. The growing popularity of Kurt Angle has also increased a call for his Signature Moves autograph, which was limited to only 500 signed.

Demand has certainly outweighed supply for these cards. Fleer's plans to include more innovative memorabilia cards in upcoming WWF products will certainly give collectors something to cheer about. However, since most of these cards are produced in limited quantities, you can be sure to see many of them at the top of collector want lists.

Older Sets

With the recent rise in wrestling card collectors, demand for older WWF and WCW card sets has also climbed. Fortunately, many of the great wrestling sets from the past are still very affordable. One set, which fans are searching for is the 1985 Topps WWF 66-card series. Many WWF greats such as Hulk Hogan, Captain Lou Albano, Jimmy "Superfly" Snuka, Rowdy Roddy Piper and George "The Animal" Steele make an appearance in this set. The 1985 Topps WWF series currently retails between $12 and $30. *

A New Season of Digimon: Digital Monsters

The third season of Digimon: Digital Monsters has just started and it's already turning heads.

"I would have to start by saying everything is completely different. The only things that are still the same is we have kids and Digimon," says Terri O'Malley, who is still the executive producer. "There will be things that a real fan can find, but that would be telling."

Still, one has to start somewhere. So O'Malley was willing to give us this much.

"The premise of this season is very different from the past," she said. "The premise in seasons one and two were a television show that the kids in season three watched. The kids in season three also play the Digimon card and computer games."

So who are these new kids? That sounds like a perfectly great place to start. And yes, they are the new Digidestined.

TAKATO: The New Kid With the Goggles
Digital Partner: Guilmon

- According to O'Malley, there still is a kid with the goggles. The thing is Takato is as much modeled after The X-Files Fox Mulder as Tai and Davis.
- Takato's a kid who honestly believes there are monsters under the bed and that Digimon are real. He loves science fiction and horror television.

- Like Tai and Davis, Takato is very courageous. Unlike them, he is more of a thinker and has a much more vivid imagination. He will also think for a minute before he jumps.
- His imagination is also his major weakness. Sometimes it runs away without Takato worrying about the consequences. Takato is also a bit of a pessimist and often imagines the worst. He's very emotional.
- Takato actually DID create Guilmon. One of the big mysteries of the new season is how he did it. Even he really doesn't know.
- On the other hand, Takato is a popular kid. He has lots of friends who will stand by him when the chips are down.
- Takato thinks his main nemesis is his mother. She has to bust his chops a lot. That is not to say Takato doesn't deserve it. His dad will step in when his mother goes overboard.

RIKA: The Troubled One
Digital Partner: Renamon

- If there's a kid with problems, it's Rika. Her problems make the ones Sora and Matt suffered in the first season appear insignificant in comparison.
- Both her parents are never around when Rika has a problem. Her mother, a supermodel, is also upset that Rika won't follow in her career path.
- Rika also has a problem regarding Digimon. Like Ken in the second season, she thinks Digimon are nothing more than data and their only purpose is to fight. She sees her personal Digimon as a card that comes to life.

Your connection to the world of Digital Monsters

- Rika's attitude toward Digimon is going to cause a lot of conflict between herself and Renamon. Rika wants to have the same relationship Takato and Henry have with their Digimon, but her prejudices are a huge stumbling block.

- It's going to take Rika a very long time before she overcomes her personal problems and starts learning how to work with Takato and Henry...and Takato and Henry to start trusting her also.

- On a positive note, Rika does have an incredible sense of humor. Once you get her trust you can't have a more loyal friend in your corner. She's also the best fighter of the three.

HENRY: The Thinker

Digital Partner:
Terriermon

- Henry is an interesting combination of Ken, Izzy and Cody. He's most likely the most intelligent of the three new Digidevoted. He's also the most philosophical. He even practices Tai Chi.

- The big difference between Henry and Rika is he's sure that Digimon are coming to Earth for reasons beside fighting. He just hasn't figured out what that is.

- His Digimon is Terriermon. This Terriermon has absolutely nothing to do with the movie though. It's a different Terriermon.

- The thing that Henry does have to learn is while Digimon are on Earth for more than fighting, there will still be times when the only thing the Digimon can do is put up their dukes and slug it out.

- Henry's other big weakness is once he makes up his mind, he won't change it. There will be times when he makes mistakes and he will be too stubborn to see he did make one.

- Keep an eye on Henry. He's going to be the first to figure out the big secrets of this new season. ★

WHAT IS YU-GI-OH?

The powerful spirit of a long dead Egyptian king called Yu-Gi-Oh is released when young Yugi unlocks the secret of an ancient puzzle. As a freshman at Domino High School, shy Yugi spends his time wishing for friends, playing board games at his grandfather's toy shop, and getting beat up by neighborhood bullies.

But that all changes, once Yugi transformed into Yu-Gi-Oh whose name means "The King of Game". Thousands of years ago, Yu-Gi-Oh's spirit was trapped within a magical talisman called "the Millennium Puzzle". Yugi completed the puzzle given to him by his grandfather and thus opened the door to a new reality.

Having lost his memory over the centuries of his imprisonment, Yu-Gi-Oh makes a deal with Yugi to protect him in his battles with monsters and bullies if Yugi helps Yu-Gi-Oh discover his lost past. But can the light of Yugi's innocence and goodness work with the dark power of Yu-Gi-Oh to triumph over evil?

YU-GI-OH'S POPULARITY & PRODUCTS

Yu-Gi-Oh began as a manga series created by Kazuki Takahashi in 1996 under the Japanese Shonen Jump label. The series grew in popularity seemingly overnight, and in 1998, Toei Animation released a new anime series. Both Bandai and Konami jumped on board to produce Yu-Gi-Oh character goods such as pencil boards, calendars, calculators, video games, and collectible gaming cards. The gaming card version of Yu-Gi-Oh which has sold more than 3.2 billion cards in Japan, is similar to both Pokémon and Magic: The Gathering. The hero, a spike-headed kid called Yugi (who looks like a Dragon Ball Z character), took on the boss of an evil organization in a card game. According to its wide variety of stylistic elements and colorful plot, it's really easy to become hooked on Yu-Gi-Oh after your first exposure to it. This is a captivating story that anime fans both young and old can enjoy.

Yu-Gi-Oh!

Character Guide

A summary of the main characters in Yu-Gi-Oh.

YUGI MUTOU

Yugi Mutou is a spike-headed kid in Domino High School. He likes all kinds of board games and his grandfather Sugoroku Mutou owns a toyshop. So, Yugi knows how to play many games in the store. In persona, Yugi is shy and lacks confidence to communicate with others. This makes him a frequent target to a countless number of bullies, gangsters, thieves, and just all around bad guys. His grandfather gave him the long lost Egyptian "The Millennium Puzzle", knowing that the magic within the puzzle may help Yugi out. This 3-D pyramid shaped puzzle called "The Millennium Puzzle" is an ancient artifact from Egypt that gives special powers to whomever wears it. This Puzzle is a part of the "Seven Sennen Sets". After Yugi completes the puzzle, his life changes.

The puzzle releases the game king of Egypt, YU-GI-OH. Whenever Yu-Gi-Oh takes control of Yugi's body, he transforms into a stronger and taller guy. Yu-Gi-Oh always uses his opponent's cheating tricks and pays it back to them. Although Yugi is weak on his normal stage, he does have many friends that stand by his side and protect him. Tea Gardner, Tristan Taylor, Mai Valentine, and Ryou Bakura are the names of some of his friends and classmates. Joey Wheeler, who is possibly Yugi's best friend, always fights for Yugi.

JOEY WHEELER

Joey Wheeler is the coolest character next to Yu-Gi-Oh. He's kind of a gangster-type of a guy. He believes fighting is always the first solution on all sorts of problems. But he does care a lot about his friends. Although he always acts like a gangster, he's a good guy. At the beginning of the story, he's one of the many bullies who spend his free time picking on Yugi. That quickly changed once Yugi said that he considered him a friend. Joey often hangs out with another guy named Tristan. Joey is a great duelist, but he's never won any battle with Yugi or Seto Kaiba. Nevertheless, he tries to prove himself as a worthy duelist to Yu-Gi-Oh.

SETO KAIBA

Seto Kaiba is a rich, cold-hearted and cruel person. He has a great passion for magic and wizards. He even created the ultimate gaming place, "Kaiba Land". Since his parents died, he and his brother Mokuba were sent to an orphanage. Seto promised Mokuba that he would take care of him. Seto challenged the president of the Kaiba Corporation, to a game of chess when he came to the orphanage to adopt. As a reward for the game, Seto and Mokuba became his adopted sons.

Seto's entire life seems to revolve around magic and wizards and he's obsessed with finding one special card called the Blue Eysed White Dragon. This is one of the strongest monster cards in the game. When Seto finds out that Yugi's grandfather has a BEWD card, he offers his entire collection in exchange for that one card. Grandfather, refuses and Seto ends up to steal the card from Yugi. But Yu-Gi-Oh beats him at a game and takes back the card for Yugi. Seto can't live with the fact that Yugi beat him, so his ultimate goal in life is to beat Yugi using whatever means necessary.

MAXIMILLION PEGASUS

Sophisticated and cultured, Pegasus is not only the ingenious creator of the Duel Monster's game, but seems to be a perfect gentleman, as well. However, Pegasus has many dark secrets. His left eye has been replaced with an ancient Egyptian artifact called the "Millennium Eye," a totem that gives Pegasus strange and magical powers. Pegasus modeled Duel Monsters after a mysterious Egyptian game thousands of years old.

TÉA GARDNER

Among all of Yugi's friends, Téa is the voice of reason. A childhood friend of Yugi's, Téa is also the biggest cheerleader in the group, always encouraging everyone to believe in himself or herself and to never give up. Téa loves her friends so very much and is willing to help them in any way she possibly can.

TRISTAN TAYLOR

Tristan met Yugi at the same time as his long time pal, Joey. And even though these two friends bicker with each other every once in awhile, they always cover each other's backs. Sometimes he's quick to panic, but when it comes down to it, Tristan is willing to do whatever it takes to support and cheer on his friends.

MAI VALENTINE

Mai is as pretty as she is dangerous...and that's pretty dangerous! She's one of the top duelists in the world and fights for the riches that await only the best. Posh and frequently self-absorbed, Mai is not above using her charm to advance her situation. Though she plays for superficial reasons, Mai may yet learn from Yugi's example.

MOKUBA KAIBA

Mokuba sees no evil in his big brother, Seto; these brothers are the only friend and family each other has since their parents died at an early age. Instead, Mokuba idolizes Seto and sees only his good side. Mokuba is so devoted to his big bro, that he's pledged to avenge anyone who crosses him.

GRANDPA

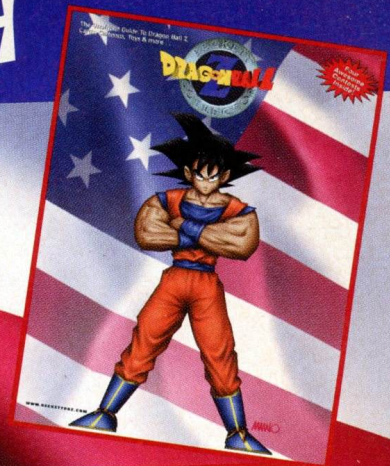

A former world traveler, Yugi's grandpa now owns the neighborhood gaming shop. Grandpa knows everything there is to know about games, but is especially well versed in the ways of Duel Monsters. Grandpa teaches Yugi about believing in the "heart of the cards."

BAKURA

Bakura is a school friend of Yugi's. You'd think their shared passion to play Duel Monsters would give them plenty to bond over, but there's just something not quite right about him. Could it be the rare and powerful Millennium ring that he possesses? After all, it seems that when the magical ring activates, Bakura cannot control its dark powers... ✱
